Wedding Bells

A very quiet wedding was performed at Nelson B.C. by the Rev. F. H. Graham of St. Saviour's Church, when Miss Jessie Eldridge, late of Coleman Alta. was married to R. H. Smith of Nelson B.C.

Opera Season Begins

"The Burgomaster" which comes to the Coleman Opera House next Monday, Aug. 29th, is perhaps the best musical attraction we will get this season. Manager Wm. P. Cullen who has given us many good things by the way is the producer and he has spared neither time or expense in making this season's production better than ever before. The cast is headed by Gus C. Weinburg who plays Peter Stuyvesant the one legged Burgomaster and has never been seen to better advantage than in this part. He is supported by a company of fifty people in which the principals are most of the originals. Mr. Cullen always makes a feature of his chorus and this season's presentations is no exception, as the press where ever they have played speak of it as being the best singing and dancing one seen in years. The production is brand new, also the costumes which were purchased at Marshall Fields in Chicago this summer.

Preparing to Welcome Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Lethbridge, August 24.—The visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to this city is going to be one of the biggest events that ever took place here. Several committees are already busy preparing for August 31st, when the premier and his party will be the city's guests. The reception will not be a political affair in the least as all parties are uniting to do him honor. Sir Wilfrid and other of his party will address a public meeting held on the public square at four o'clock in the afternoon, after which a reception will be held in the Majestic Theatre. Should the weather be unfavorable for an open air meeting, the address will be given in the Theatre and other halls which will hold the overflow crowds. Reduced rates have been secured on all railway lines for the occasion.

Coleman Brieflets

A. L. Blain is in town to-day. Corp. Hall was in Coleman on Tuesday.

Mr. H. Houston of Nelson is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Graham to-day.

E. Disney is building a laundry in Blainmore.

J. Sargeant, formerly of Blainmore, has been appointed a Justice of the Peace at Warner, Alta.

E. Morin arrived in town to-day. Joe came back to put the finishing looks on the Eagle Block.

Mayor Cameron has been under the Doctor's care for several days but is now nearly well again.

Dr. Ross has taken Wesley Johnston's house on 2nd. street and will move into it this week. His family will join him later on.

W. H. Haysom is recovering rapidly from the injuries to his right hand, part of which had to be amputated and will soon be able to go to work.

BUILDING STILL CONTINUES BRISK

Increased Shipments of Coal Augur Well For Coleman.

Coleman, as the result of her large mining shipments, is steadily growing. With this growth, building is keeping apace. The town has a population of over two thousand and more than one hundred thousand dollars has been expended on public buildings and houses during the year ending August 1st, 1910. Notwithstanding all this expenditure in buildings during the past 12 months there is not a vacant house in town and many families are looking for suitable quarters. Someone with the necessary capital would reap a handsome return from the erection of modern size cottages with modern improvements.

No town of the same size has, as shown by the financial reports, equalled this figure. Among the buildings recently built are a six roomed school, Fire hall, and forty-seven residences. Aside from this the International Coal Co. have installed an enlarged water system while the McGillivray Creek Coal Co. have spent a quarter of a million on an up-to-date modern plant.

The one outstanding fact at the base of this tremendous growth, is the deep confidence that the citizens of Coleman have in their mines. The output of these mines is now 35000 daily. For this output there is a constant demand. Simultaneous with the upbuilding of the mines is the upbuilding of the town.

While the present conditions amply warrant the establishing of industries, the future holds out to the investor great returns and possibilities. Cheap fuel and cheap power always make an investment a certainty. In this double fact we have the secret of our future prosperity, which will be an era unprecedented in our history. Day by day, we see larger shipments. Month by month we see more costly and substantial buildings rise where before a cabin scarred the landscape. Year by year we see fresh evidences of renewed confidence in the ability of the coal companies to produce greater outputs and greater pay rolls.

To cope with the situation thus created, the Canadian Pacific Railway is building two miles of additional yardage and switches. Increased business warrants it.

The demand for more boarding houses, lodging places and residences is increasing faster than the supply. Who is to reap the harvest from the building of these necessary buildings is now an interesting topic.

Perhaps it may read strange, but in this new town, now being incorporated, we have no residential dental surgeon, no steam laundry yet plies to our comfort and a number of other accessories have yet to make their appearance.

Coleman possesses a well-equipped water system. This fact reduces insurance and insures health. An electric light plant is also in operation and numerous electrical experts have given their opinion that it is the most satisfactory system yet installed in any town of Alberta. The rate per sixteen candle power is only 55 cents flat rate.

We have in view the creation of a street connecting West Coleman with its logical centre Coleman.

Coleman Opera House, Monday, August 29.

At the evening service in St. Albans' church, on Sunday evening, the subject of the sermon will be "The need of Discrimination in the Books we read." Miss Mabel Rochester will sing a solo during the offertory.

Don't forget the Laurier excursion to Lethbridge, Fern and one third.

J. A. MacDonald representative of the Sun Life was in Coleman on Wednesday.

Council Meets

A special meeting of the Coleman Council was held on Tuesday evening Aug. 23rd. All members were present. Chair-Cameron introduced a delegation, Messrs. Ouimette and Disney from the Board of Trade on the matter of policing Coleman after incorporation.

President Ouimette was the first speaker. He thought it was our duty to see that Coleman was economically policed, so that the expenses during the first year would be lessened considerably. He also thought that they should be asked to remain at once. The matter was outside the province of the Board of Trade so the Board of Trade saw fit to ask the Council to take steps necessary for the keeping of the R.N.W.M.P. in Coleman in addition to local police.

E. Disney stated that a large number of citizens had advised keeping the Mounted Police for the purpose of policing Coleman.

At this juncture F. G. Graham asked if the delegates wished the Mounted Police to do more than patrol the West. Councillor Graham stated that if they were kept in control of the police work of the town that all the fines would go to the government. To this he was opposed.

Councillor MacDonald also thought that our town Constable would be sufficient to police Coleman.

Mr. Cameron dwelt at length on the patrol work that must be done by the provincial police at Bush town and McGillivray. He thought the Mounted Police should be kept at Coleman. The Council being evidently in favor of having only a patrol station separate from town duties, the delegates then retired.

Question of first election for town of Coleman was next brought up. The procedure to be followed was discussed and it was decided to apply for the declaration of incorporation at once and to hold the nomination and election on or about the 14th. or 21st. of September.

Moved by J. O. C. MacDonald seconded by F. G. Graham, that the Chairman when making application to the Hon. Lieut. Gov. to have Coleman erected into a Town Municipality respectfully request his honor to name the earliest possible day for nominations of Mayor and Councillors and that H. G. be appointed Returning Officer. Carried.

The minutes of the previous meeting were then read and adopted.

The following accounts were received and certified to: Coupon for Fire Hall, $1.50 Provincial Telephone Co., $4.50 H. G. Goodlove Co. Ltd., $20.15 It was moved by J. O. C. MacDonald and seconded by F. G. Graham that the above accounts be paid. Carried.

An application from Wm. Burrows as town policeman was received and ordered filed.

The question of the license for pool and billiard tables was brought up. It was decided that the license would have to be paid.

Council then adjourned.

KISS IN THE DARK

The Meeting in the Train and the Close of the Episode.

Copyright, 1919, by AMERICAN PAPER ASSOCIATION.

George Goddard, starting for the seashore one day in July, felt so buoyant that it seemed he must go up to the air like a balloon. He flung his belongings down into a seat, then walked through the cars, out on to the platform, anywhere, everywhere. He was so happy he couldn't keep still. Then came the cry "All aboard!" He jumped on to the train and rolled out of the station, on streamy wheels.

In a seat on the opposite side of the car sat a young lady reading a book. She was languidly dressed. Her hair shimmered in the sun that streamed in at the window beside her. She was an altogether attractive looking person. The girl seemed to be absorbed in her book, and there was no chance to escape an acquaintance. But she had been without reading matter for a long time, and she was so tired that she had resorted to the old device of offering her a magazine, a book or a paper, but since she was already supplied to offer more would make the underlying motive too apparent.

The girl seemed to be unaware that there was a young man in the car who was eying her intently. The book she was reading must have been absorbing, for she did not pause a moment to look out of the window or anywhere else for that matter—not even in the direction of the admiring Goddard. His raptures excited in him a confidence that would have led him to use any excuse had he been able to invent one, but so long as she kept her eyes glued to the pages before her there was no opening.

An hour passed, during which Goddard's eyes were as firmly fastened on the girl as her own eyes were fastened on the book, and all the while the girl's face to which his glance was directed wore her lips. There are certain lips that can only be described by one word—kissable—and this girl's lips were of that kind. Surely it was dangerous for a youngster just escaped from a treadmill to sit for whole hours looking at a pair of kissable lips. Indeed, Goddard, worked upon by his gladness of heart, the beautiful morning, the attractiveness of the girl and those two delicately curved, rippling lips, did that which the moment after it was done filled him with consternation. When the train dashed into a tunnel he made a dash for her, threw his arms around her neck, there was a momentary struggle, and he had kissed her.

It was all over within a quarter of a minute, and luckily so, for the tunnel was a very short one; indeed, so short that no lamps had been lighted in the car. When the train shot out into daylight Goddard was looking out of the window with apparent unconcern, though his heart was beating like a kettle drum. It was some time before he dared look at the girl, but when he did she was reading her book. There was another woman who sat in the seat next to Goddard's, but she was fast asleep, and Goddard was too tired to disturb her. He was so tired that he had kissed the girl in the dark had been just as delicious as if he had kissed the pink one. Singular, wasn't it?

But Goddard was quite sure he had kissed the girl with the kissable lips. She sat two seats in advance of him and on the opposite side. In order to make sure of going the right distance he had put his hand on her knee, and she had been so startled that she had given him a look that said she was not the right person, but why did the woman in the rear seat look so flustered, and why was the girl in front so undisturbed? It was a mystery that he could not solve at that time.

The conductor called "Pebble Beach," and the train slowed up at the station at which Goddard was to stop. Collecting his belongings he went to the girl's seat. He saw the girl's eyes were still left the car in advance of him and, giving her hand a squeeze and a check to a woman, entered the cab, while his admirer entered another. When he was driven up to his hotel the girl was Godard felt uneasy. A friend of his mother's had given him a note of introduction to a Miss Margaret Deane, who was at the hotel or expected to be there shortly. But as he arrived, he supposed the young lady he had kissed should be this Margaret Deane? And suppose she knew he had kissed her? He shuddered. That was a woman of rare good sense and discretion she could make it hot for him. Should she tell the story to his friends? He might better take passage for Australia or some port where he would be lost to his former existence. When he had faced that he might have kissed the wrong woman he had been much distressed and disappointed. Now he hoped he had.

Going to his room, he changed his dress for dinner. Just before going into the dining hall he passed the girl he had kissed. She was walking through the hall. She did not notice him. He was encouraged to think that either he had kissed the other woman or that this one did not connect him with the person who had kissed her. On the register he found the name of Margaret Deane, it having been placed there not far from his own. After dinner he called a servant, gave him his card with his note of introduction and told him to find Miss Deane and deliver them. The servant returned and said Miss Deane would meet Mr. Goddard in the drawing room. Goddard went there and waited a few minutes, when the lady entered. She was the girl with the kissable lips.

She advanced to meet Goddard without the slightest indication of ever having seen him before. The blood suddenly departed from his cheeks; but, encouraged by her manner, he regained confidence and was engaged to stammer some commonplace remarks. Then when they came to chat more freely he observed her closely with a view to discover whether there was evidence of her knowing that he was the person who had taken the liberty the consequences of which had thrown him into so great a terror. He could not detect the slightest sign of her ever having seen him before or of antagonism or embarrassment at meeting him. Surely he must have kissed the wrong woman after all.

Mr. Goddard saw more or less of Miss Deane. His mind was on his secret, and he could not let it alone. He was impelled to discover what would have been his fate had she been kissed by him, as he had intended, knowing him to be the culprit. He made a supposititious case in which a friend of his had done the same thing and asked her what she would do. "A man I had never seen and knew nothing about?" she asked.

"I don't know what I should have done openly, inwardly I should have despised the man who kissed me," she shuddered.

Toward the end of his vacation Goddard recovered largely from his fright. Every day he felt more and more sure that he had kissed the woman who had sat behind Miss Deane, and he sincerely hoped that that woman had done so to the other side of the globe for a permanent residence. But the fact that Miss Deane surely she would have given some intimation of the fact that she had passed through the experience of the person he had mentioned in the supposititious case.

But one day he received a terrible scare. Miss Deane appeared one morning on the beach, her neckwear plumed with a horsehair scarf or stickpin the exact duplicate of one he had owned. This would not have been so terrifying had it not been that he had worn his horsehair in his scarf on the day he came up from the city to the seashore. He had noticed upon after his arrival that he had lost it, and, recalling the circumstances of his journey, had remembered that when going to the train on a street car he had been jostled in a crowd. He had assumed that at this moment he had been relieved of his pin. Now, seeing its exact counterpart on Miss Deane, he was seized with one of those alarms that are the result of a guilty conscience.

He joined the young lady and riveted his eye on the pin she wore. It looked familiar. A horsehair is a common form of scarfpin, but this was certainly very like the one he had lost.

"Hatter a neat pin that of yours," he remarked.

"Do you admire it?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, I suppose I'll have to give it to you. It's really a man's pin."

"Oh, really, I didn't mean to ask for it."

"I don't value it. It's one I found."

Goddard's heart began to beat faster. "Found? May I ask where?"

"The owner lost it on the train, I fancy, the day I came up here."

Goddard's heart stood still.

"Did you find it on the floor?"

"No."

"Well, then, where did you find it?"

"Why, to tell the truth, I didn't find it at all. I took it."

Goddard's knees were beginning to give way beneath him.

"Won't you tell me," he stammered, "how you came by it?"

"Yes. Before I came up here a friend of mine told me that she would give a young man a note of introduction to me, showing me his photograph. I saw him get on to the train. In a tunnel some one kissed me. In the struggle my hand brushed against his scarfpin and I seized it."

"He ought to be tarred and feathered."

A burst of laughter from the girl, and the episode was ended.

CHIC STYLES.

Varieties of the New Blouses—Orange a Parisian Color Winner.

The newest blouses and separate waists show the closing either down the front or at one side, for which very many women will be thankful.

The latest waist seems a personality in the world of fashion, for though the models change, the materials remain practically the same.

the rage of the moment in Paris and is used not only for draping hats, but for evening dresses.

If two bar pins are used to fasten the collar let them be alike. Do not have a gold pin at the top and a silver one at the bottom.

The skirt illustrated is good to use either as part of a coat suit or as a skirt for dress with separate waist. It is very smart trimmed with bands of the material or with wide satin or braid.

A pattern of this separate skirt may be had in six sizes—from 22 to 32 inches waist—send in cent to this office, giving number (467), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail.

ATTRACTIVE TRIFLES.

Taupe No Longer an Exclusive Color. The Severely Tailored Suit Smart.

The well-dressed woman is not wearing taupe for the moment. The costume for the color is so excessively popular that it is common.

The tailors are joining forces just now to keep short skirted, severely tailored suits in vogue.

The mode of the moment, however, is the classical tailor made, with long skirt and picturesque coat.

Plumy lace trimmed frocks are elegant fashion, with long, clinging lines. Much hand embroidery in color is used on white fabrics.

Directoire and empire waists of wide black silk have their ends worked in a design with gun metal beads.

Gun hand fun tucks are to be a favorite trimming on the new lingerie frocks. Such work, although tedious, is not beyond the powers of the average needlewoman.

Coral jewelry shows no signs of losing its popularity, and if a girl has an old-fashioned brooch or a pair of long-pendant earrings she is considered especially fortunate.

A useful little dress may be made from this model if some material such as challis or lightweight serge is employed. It can be trimmed with braid, hand embroidery or with bands of the material.

A pattern of this dress may be had in four sizes—for girls from six to twelve years of age. Send in cent to this office, giving number (468), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail.

For many years Mrs. Belva Lockwood has devoted herself chiefly to the practice of law and has won a wide reputation as a lawyer. She is a familiar figure before the supreme court of the United States.

Miss Job of Queenstown, Tasmania, is said to be the only woman who has ever sat within the bar at a Wesleyan Methodist conference. When she first took her seat near one minister protested that the conference was composed only of ministers and laymen and that they had no power to admit the female lady in the land.

Chaufeur Tips.

When the engine breaks down begin operations by lighting a cigarette. Take your time about it. This impresses the bystanders with your skill and coolness.

Lift your hammer and peer tip engine for a few minutes, whistling merrily. Walk round the other side and repeat.

Do the necessary repairs. Don't forget to lie on your back in the road beneath the car. The crowd will expect it.

Should the crowd grow restive offer to its most noisy member the opportunity of taking your place.

It happens to be in the business and accepts your offer let him do the work.

Start the engine, watch it for a minute and then replace bonnet.

Do not drive away at once. That would be inhuman. Manager with the clutch until the crowd grows joyous in expectation of another failure and then drive off smartly.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ARTEMUS WARD ON WOMAN.

Old Sketch of Famous Humorous Applicable to Present Time.

I PITCHED my tent in a small town in Indiana one day last season, and while I was standing at the door taking notes of a fashion of ladies came up & asked they was members of the Bunkerville Female & Reformers' & Winton's Fite Amoschun, and they asked me if they could get in without paying.

"Not exactly," sez I, "but you can pay without goin' in."

"Dew you know who we air?" said one of the simlin, a tall and ferevous lookin' critter, with a blew cotton umbrella under her arm—"do you know who we air, sir?"

"My impression is," sez I, "from a kersney view, that you air females."

"We air, sir," said the ferevous woman. "We belong to a society which believes wimlu has rites, which we believe in rasin' her her proper spier, which believes she is endowed with as much intellect as man is, which believes she is trampled on and abused & who will resist henth & forever the increments of proud & domineerin' men."

Durin' her discourse the excentric female grabbed me by the coat collar & was swingin' her umbrella wildly over my head.

"I hope, marm," sez I, startin' back, "that your intentions is honorable. I'm a lone man here in a strange place. Beware, I've a wife at home."

"Yes," cried the female, "she's a slave! She never dream of freedom! Doh she never think of throwin' off the yoke of tryin' and thinkin' for herself! Doh she never think of these things?"

"Not help a natural born fool," sez I, by this time a little riled, "I kin safely say that she did."

"Oh, what, what?" sez she, "the female, swingin' her umbrella in the air. "Oh, what is the price that woman pays for her appearance?"

"I don't know," sez I. "The price of my show is five cents per individual."

"Can't our society go in free?" asked the female.

"Not if I know it," sez I.

"Good, cryin' man," she cried & burst into tears.

"Won't you let my darter in?" sez one of the excentric wimlu, takin me affectively by the hand. "Oh, please let my darter in. She's a sweet, gushin' child of nature."

"Let her gush," roared I, as mad as I could stick at their ternal nonsense—"let her gush!" whereupon they all started to sing with the simultaneous observance that I was a beast.

"My female friends," sez I, "be ye leere I've a few remarks to remark. Wa them well. The female woman is one of the greatest institutions of this land can boast. It's impossible to get along without her. Had these few females wimlu in the world I should scarcely be here with my unperished show on this very occasion. She is good in sickness, good in wellness, good all the time. O woman, woman, I cried, my feelings worked up to a high poetic pitch, you air an angel when you behave yourself, but when you take off your proper apron & (meretriciously speakin) get into any darter, when you doest your tressies & with your beds full of wimlu's rite washins, go round like roarin' lions seekin' whom you may devour somebody in a short, when you undertake to play the man you sucture the devil and air an awful nuisance. My female friends," I continued as they were indignantly departin', "wa well what A. Ward has sez."

Then He Woke Up.

Milady's Mirror

"If we are to better the scientists," says a writer in a recent magazine, "the brunettes will inherit the earth and the blonds will dwindle away. All over the world they tell us the brunettes are increasing faster than their light-lived and blue-eyed brothers and sisters. In America, Germany, the land of the Saxons, the old Teutonic face is changing and the dark pool is giving place to the brown bend. In England we hear the same complaint, and in France the old Frankish blond is so rare that light hair and eyes are at a decided premium. The blood is dividing so fast that you can actually see him dwindle."

"Now, according to Charles F. Woodruff, surgeon and major in the United States army, the same thing is happening in America. Dr. Woodruff states that the blonds are losing out in the struggle for existence and are filling our jails and almshouses. He attributes this deplorable fact to an excess of sunlight, which the sensitive blond cannot endure."

"The few remaining blonds in the world who read these lines will doubtless regret that they were not born in the dark ages, when there was no excess of sunlight." But we do not despair, for we believe that American ingenuity once embarked on a conservation policy will manage to preserve this last great resource of ours, the American blond."

Aids to Health and Beauty.

Yawning, except in polite society, should be indulged in rather than repressed. The reason why? A good, free, unrestricted yawn counteracts the effect of laughing. Just stop and think how often we laugh and how seldom comparatively we yawn. The muscles are stretched in one direction while laughing, and by constant repetition little lines are formed around the mouth, which, when the face is at rest, are very noticeable. Yawning stretches these same muscles in exactly the opposite direction and therefore tends to undo the mischief caused by our good humor.

Yawning by don't stop laughing, or you will be like the woman who, at an advanced age, had not one wrinkle in her face, but whose countenance was entirely expressionless. Dreading these same lines and wrinkles, she had all her life schooled her features to express nothing of joy or sorrow.

Large, sharply-cut, intelligent features of mind and toleration of others' peculiarities.

"This lips denote covetousness, greed, selfishness, and, unless strongly contradicted by other features, intense love of power."

The more curved and flexible the lips the more yielding the nature; the more straight and firm the lips the more severe the nature. Lips that look as if they had been pressed into a straight line show self-repression, nervousness and obstinacy.

A month to be perfect should be large and shapely, the corners straight or very slightly inclined to droop; lips neither thick nor thin and firmly but easily closed.

Old Time Skin Tonic.

A simple tonic for the skin at this time of the year is often necessary and beneficial to give tone and clearness to the complexion. The following old-fashioned lotion, which is said to date from the time of Queen Elizabeth, may be safely used, even for the most sensitive skin. To half a pint of old flower water add drop by drop, stirring all the time to prevent the solution from curdling, two drams of simple tincture of benzoin, then add six drops of tincture of myrrh and a teaspoonful of glycerin. The lotion can be used two or three times a day and will be found exceptionally cooling and refreshing to the skin.

Girls and Their Hair.

Athletic girls should make a point of being so triply put together that they do not fall to pieces in the stress of play or force of emotion. They may do so. Men sometimes scarily say that girls cannot play games with an undivided mind because half of their gravity matter is taken up with anxiety lest their hair will fall down. The following is a simple remedy for this. To a few drops of hair oil add a few drops of hair oil. The hair will be kept in place and the girls will be able to play games with an undivided mind.

The Most Human Picture Ever Painted

"THE DOCTOR"

A photograph reproduction of this great painting, 22x28 inches in size—the largest photograph ever printed.

PRICE 25c, POSTAGE PREPAID

The original of this great painting, by Luke Fildes, hangs in the Tate Gallery, in London, placed there by popular subscription of the British people. Never has brush depicted more powerfully the expressions of professional amity, maternal grief, fatherly hopelessness or childish helplessness. It is really as well as figuratively the most human of the world's great works of art.

Newspaper enterprise, backing modern mechanical progress, makes it possible to put this work of art into the hands of the public at this nominal cost.

Dry Cleaned Them

"Why is your grandpa's face bandaged?" asks the lady next door.

"He was sleeping in his big chair," explains the little girl, "and Willie turned the handle of the vacuum cleaner against his whiskers."

Something New

"Waiter, what is that machine I see on each table?"

"That, sir, is a tip register. It saves the waiter the trouble of getting called."

The old family physician being away on a much-needed vacation, his practice was entrusted to his son, a recent medical graduate. When the old man returned, the youngster told him, among other things, that he had cured Miss Ferguson, an aged and wealthy spinster, of her chronic indigestion.

"My boy," said the old doctor, "I'm proud of you; but Miss Ferguson's indigestion is what put you through college."—Everybody's Magazine.

Have You Remembered It?

When packing for the country cottage, don't forget your box of Zamb-Buk! Blisters, sunburn, scratches, insect stings, etc., if not immediately attended to, are likely to spoil your pleasure. Zamb-Buk ensures you against trouble from these. Take Zamb-Buk, instead of taking chances! Zamb-Buk is antiseptic; kills all poison in wounds, whether from barbed wire fence, or insect sting. Soothes aching feet and blistered hands; heals baby's chafed places; cools those sunburn patches, and prevents freckles. No mother should be without it. Purely herbal in its composition, Zamb-Buk is always superior to the ordinary ointments containing animal oils and fats, and mineral coloring matter. All druggists and stores sell Zamb-Buk, but avoid harmful substitutes.

"Oh," replied Augustus, "he—he did his best to be pleasant. He said there was something about me that he really admired."

"Did he say what?"

"Yes; my impudence."

A RUTHLESS SLAUGHTER

ELEPHANTS PRACTICALLY EXTERMINATED IN AFRICA.

For Two Hundred and Fifty Years the Great Beast Has Been a Target for the Gun of the Ivory Hunter—French Society Makes Plans for His Preservation—Britain Is Working in Same Cause.

For many years, in fact almost ever since the white man and his native allies have been killing off the elephant, there has been discussion of means of preserving the big beast from extinction. The discussion has concerned the African elephant chiefly, because the Indian elephant through hard work as a helper of mankind has become a valuable member of society and has practically saved himself; but the big fellow of the African wilds has merely basked in the sunshine, played in the pools, tramped down the early settler's corn and been such a nuisance and an idler that he has been considered a good target for ivory hunters' guns.

Now a French society, known as "The Friends of the Elephant," as bestirred itself in his behalf. This society has awakened so much interest that the French Government has given it support but other nations that have African possessions are seeing what can be made out of the loss of this costly and valuable animal. The plan advocated by the society is that of establishing preserves or sanctuaries where the elephant might live in some sense of security with his family and not be disturbed by hunters seeking his tusks to sell for ivory.

There is no doubt that he has got very much the worst of it ever since the white man came to South Africa. His case has a parallel in this country in the buffalo. As the buffalo was able to make out against the Indian, so the elephant was able to live and thrive with the black men who surrounded him. He was not in great danger of extinction from the pitfalls and assaults of the natives. It was when the white man with firearms appeared upon the scene that the elephant was able to live and thrive with the black men who surrounded him. One of the old time hunters left an especially interesting record for daring and skill. It was a trick with him to calculate the elephant's path, to some fine big bull in a herd, make a chalk mark on him and then follow him. The way was not hard, for he made with tenderness, it is said, kept him in gin and tobacco until he had to turn back. When the Dutch landed at Cape Town about 250 years ago his evil days began.

A HINDU LEGEND

How the First Man and the First Woman Lost the Garden of Eden.

Brahma made up his mind to make the world and a man and woman. He made the world, and he made the man and then the woman and put them on the island of Ceylon according to the account it was the most beautiful island which man can conceive—such a paradise, such songs, such flowers and such verdure! And the branches of trees were so arranged that when the wind swept through them every tree was a thousand acolian harp.

Brahma when he put them there said, "Let them have a period of courtship, for it is my desire and will that true love should forever precede marriage."

Then they had their courtship, with the nightingale singing and the stars shining and the flowers blooming. They were in love, imagine that courtship—no prospective fathers or mothers in law, no prying and gossiping of neighbors, nobody to say, "Young man, be do you expect to support her?" Nothing of that kind. They were married by the supreme Brahma, and he said to them: "Remain here. You must never leave this island." Well, after a little while the man said, "I believe I'll look about a little."

He went to the northern extremity of the island, where there was a little narrow neck of land connecting it with the mainland, and there the devil, who is always playing pranks with us, produced a mirage, and when he saw the man, he said, "Follow me, such hills and vales, such dells and dales, such mountains crowned with snow, such cataraacts clad in bows of glory, did I see there that he went back and told his wife: 'The country over there is a thousand times better than this narrow neck of land he lived, said: 'Let well enough alone. We have all we want. Let us stay here.'"

But he said, "No; let us go." So she followed him, and when they took her on his back like a gentleman and carried her over. But the moment they got over they heard a crash and looking back, discovered that this narrow neck of land had fallen into the sea. The mirage had disappeared, and he was left with only rocks and sand, and then the supreme Brahma cursed them both to the lowest hell.

Then it was the man spoke. "Curse me, but curse not her. It was not her fault. It was mine."

The supreme Brahma said, "I will save her, but not thee. And then she spoke out of her fullness of love, out of a heart in which there was love enough to make her give up her life in holy affection, and said: 'If I should not spare him, spare him for me. I will give up my life without him. I love him. Then the supreme Brahma said, "I will spare you, but you must never see your children again."

Ready to Talk

Very soon after the first lady years ago arranged that Mr. Lecky should meet an able and famous Irishman of very advanced opinions in politics. It was intended that they should exchange views, and the Irishman had a good deal to say about Mr. Lecky's later work, for he was well able to put what he had to say in the most effective language. The door opened, and Mr. Lecky was announced. He was introduced to the Irishman, and before the latter had time to say anything the Irishman began a political harangue which he kept going without cessation the whole time he was there. The Irishman at first tried to speak in with a word, but he was swept away, as it were, in the unceasing flow of Mr. Lecky's language, so after a time he was in amused bewilderment, waiting until nature gave out. But when Mr. Lecky felt he was getting exhausted he rose from his chair and shook hands with the hostess and her guest, keeping on talking all the time. They came out with him to the top of the staircase, but could not get a word in edgewise even then, as he talked all the way down to the door and was even in an unfinished sentence when the door was shut behind him. They looked at each other and roared.

First English Book on Sport.

The first book on sport ever printed in the English language was a rhymed treatise called the "Boke of St. Albans" and it was written by a man named Dame Juliana Berners. Its second edition was printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1496. A descendant of this family, Lord Berners, was the translator of Froissart's "Chronicles." It is true that old manuscripts existed, such as the "Venise de Tracy" of the time of Edward II., but it was Dame Juliana who was the real ancestress of sporting literature in England, for she also composed an essay on hawking and another on "Fishing With an Angle," the last being of such excellence that Isaac Walton himself did take a hint from its pages.

A Titled Kleptomaniac.

A titled kleptomaniac almost a century ago was the Countess of Cors. She had a reputation for stealing any thing she could lay her hands on, whether it was used or valuable or not. Once, when leaving a country house where she had been staying, she saw and quietly picked up a hedgehog that was crossing a hall, a pet of the porter's, and took it away in her carriage. Finding it an uncomfortable foot-warmer, she decided to dispose of it at the first town where she changed horses and then offered it to a confectioner in return for a sponge cake.

Before Marriage.

Fuddy—There would be fewer unhappy marriages in the world if men and women would try to find out each other's dispositions during courtship instead of trying their best to deceive one another.

Daddy—Yes, I guess there would be, as you say, fewer unhappy marriages. In fact, there would be fewer marriages of any kind, I guess.

MISERABLE WITH DYSPEPSIA

Another Wonderful Cure By That Wonderful Fruit Medicine "Fruit-a-lives."

Mr. Mathias Dent, of 225 Church street, Ottawa, Ont., was treated for years by physicians for Painful Dyspepsia. He spent so much money for doctor's medicines without getting much relief that he had about made up his mind that his case was hopeless.

Seeing "Fruit-a-lives" advertised, however, Mr. Dent thought he would invest $50 in a box of these wonderful fruit juice tablets.

And this famous fruit medicine did for Mr. Dent what all the doctors could not do—it cured him.

He writes:—"Fruit-a-lives" positively cured me of severe dyspepsia, when physicians failed to relieve me."

"Fruit-a-lives" makes the stomach sweet and clean, insures sound digestion and regulates bowels, kidneys and skin.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c—at all dealers, or from Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Count their many blessings" Name them one by one." (A taxpayer after voting.)

Coleman is too busy to play football. Try us on cartwheels.

E. Morino claims no relationship to Eddie Morino, the bruiser.

The snow fell in the nick of time and in the niche of places where it was wanted.

Property on First and Second streets will be placed on the market at foot frontage on May 1st.

The crops are turning out much better than expected. A short straw hath a large head and a bushel of wheat is worth 90 cents this year. Looks more like a windfall than a shortfall.

The application of a pedlar to peddle wares without a license should not be heeded by the council. Merchants who pay taxes, and maintain an extensive stock and location should be considered. The itinerant merchant is not out to build up a city.

The prospects for the street to be opened over the bluff in the next twelve months are now real. The council has been working successfully on this project and its solution is now only a matter of months. We owe it to West Coleman anyway.

Fair progress is being made towards the establishment of a well equipped hospital. Every one should unite and obtain a splendid institution.

Candidates

The demand for aldermanic Candidates who have the requisite qualifications is now felt. While we are in the act of selecting our town fathers it would be well to select them by acclamation, thus breaking down any possible barriers of disruption or in any way compromising them with future actions. The town is too young for strenuous disputes.

The Board of Trade could by a special meeting ask the council to call a public meeting where every class is represented and select seven candidates that would be favorable to the taxpayers at large. This would mean an election by acclamation sure. It would reduce expenses and create an amicable feeling amongst the members of Coleman's first council.

Westwood and Ross

Dr. Westwood of Coleman and Dr. Robert Ross, who has for the past 8 months been associated with Dr. Newburn of Lethbridge in his surgical work, have formed a partnership, and will henceforth, practice together in Coleman. Dr. Westwood will be able to give more attention to general medicine and maternity work and Dr. Ross, who has had an extensive hospital experience in the East, including nearly two years at the Western General Hospital in Montreal, where he held the important position of Medical Superintendent prior to coming to Alberta will attend chiefly to the surgical and operative part of the practice.

A prize will be given of the best pair of patent leather shoes to be brought in town, for the highest score made up till September, 15th, at the Cabinet Bowling Alley.

Situation Saved

The Council without any loud cymbals beating, have made it possible now to obtain government aid for the street across the bluff.

Matters looked blue last week when Foreman McIntyre declared he must go on rebuilding the high road near the residence of O. E. S. Whitehead. It meant this, that if this work was proceeded with, that all hopes of getting a road across the bluff would be lost. According to the Council despatched the following telegram to Mr. John Stocks Coleman, Alta. Aug. 22nd. 1910

John Stocks Esq.

Government Public Works

Your Foreman McIntyre informs me he will start on old trail north of Coleman, Tuesday, is it wise to spend money on a road which concerns the whole Pass, and satisfies none. White-side cut is impassable with snow four months each winter. Coleman would share with the Government expense of blowing out the cliff rather than have a make-shift road.

ALEX. CAMERON

Yesterday the answer came from Mr. Stocks as more reassuring. The letter reads as follows

Edmonton, Aug. 23rd. 1910
Alex Cameron, Esq.
Coleman, Alta.

Sir,

Your lettergram of the 22nd., with reference to not wishing any improvement on the old trail over hill where the road enters Coleman on the west, in view of which it has been decided that the contemplated work will be abandoned.

Your obedient servant,
John Stocks
Deputy Min.

The prospect of getting the road through the bluff is now bright.

Successful Year at ## Western Canada College

That high class institution for boys, Western Canada College, Colgaro, has just closed a very successful year. It is now seven years since it opened its doors as the first incorporated College in what is now provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The attendance has steadily grown and now with total registration of nearly 130, it stands out as the largest institution West of the Great Lakes. The staff has steadily increased from two to three, to four, to five, to six regular teachers for it is the aim of the College to have our master for every twenty boys.

At the moment of writing the boys are engaged on College and University Examinations of McGill, Toronto Alta. and Manitoba Universities. Hereto the College has been wonderfully successful, several of the candidates having come very near the top among six or seven hundred boys.

Each year the College has sent forth a large number of lads to take places in business offices, wholesale establishments and banks. Excellent reports are being received of their progress.

The College has achieved success because, as the boys themselves testify, they are made to work. Great care is taken with the discipline, in training the preparation of boys.

In the coming year it is the intention to secure an instructor whose special business it will be to give the boys smart appearance in bearing, in dress, in manner, that come from constant and careful training in Military Drill and general Athletics.

The College has excellent opportunities to carry out this, as well as other lines of work. There are three separate buildings, a residence, a school, and gymnasium. There are eighteen acres of excellent grounds on which are tennis courts, cricket pitch, and football spaces.

During the present summer further improvements are to be made that the different buildings may be more commodious and more comfortable. The corporation has recently purchased a new property some distance from the centre of the city. Here in two or three years, the best building that money can secure for a residential college and all its requirements will be erected.

Hospital For Coleman

Two Sisters of Providence from Kingston, Ontario waited upon Mayor Cameron and President Ouimet this morning in regard to the building of a hospital terms and conditions. As no definite propositions were laid down regarding the conditions an arrangement was made to have a gentleman represent the Sisters and give authoritative statements at a public meeting which will be called in the near future.
